The day's work started on with the usual fielding practice, and Manager Shaffer handled the stick with good effect for the infielders, while several others swatted the high sphere for those out in the three grass plots. The ground had dried considerably and was in much botter shape than on the previous day, and the ball rarely passed beyond the four points of the square. Every man was in his place to receive the hot grounders that Shaffer delivered with precision and dispatch; and mits and ball made a close acquaintance. REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING NOTES

The auction sales of real estate announced for yesterday afternoon were largely attended and bidding was spirited, showing that the interest on the part of investors in Richmond real estate is in no way lagging. It is true that few sales were made. The fact is that on a rising market it is seldom that sales are made at auction unless they be court sales on foreclosures of mortgages, when the property offered must go to the highest bidder, no matter what the last bid may be. As a general rule, the bidders at an auction are people in search of a bargain, and oftener than otherwise the highest bidder does not so the full limit, but at the same time the highest bid makes a mark that is a valuable guide to the real estate agent who has the property in charge. It often happens that an auction sale that results in no sale is followed in twenty-four or forty-eight hours by a private sale of the same property, at figures far beyond the high bid at auction. The failure to sell at auction, therefore, is a sign of activity in real estate. Several good sales were made privately yesterday, especially in suburban property. The Bunting Neal Company report the sale of several beautiful lots in Boulevard residence park, upon which it is understood residences are to be erected at once.
